

Helping a noble cause through art

250 artists will come together to raise funds for underprivileged children

Artist Brinda Miller with Vidya Shah, director, EdelGive Foundation

DIVYA AIYER

THE ASIAN AGE

✉ An upcoming art initiative by EdelGive Foundation will bring the art works of 250 artists across India under one roof with the aim of supporting the education of under-privileged children. Titled "Palette 2013", the art exhibition will see the works of artists like Jaideep Mehrotra, Brinda Miller, Samir Mondal and Papri Bose Mehta among others. The funds raised will be used to support 10 NGOs working in the arena of education.

Speaking about the event artist Papri Bose Mehta says, "As artists we are deeply impacted by the social inequalities around us. I am happy to see so many artists coming out to support the cause." The NGOs that will be supported by this event are Aangan Trust, Agastya, Aroehan, Chehak Trust, Muktangan and others.

*On February 17,
At Fountainhead, Alibaug*